

Patrick Weafer

Patrick is a lawyer practicing with a mid-size full service law firm in downtown Vancouver. Patrick grew up in the Seymour and Deep Cove area, having attended both Dorothy Lynas and Seycove Secondary Schools. While growing up in the area, Patrick enjoyed a wide variety of the amenities and services offered at Parkgate Community Centre, and now looks to give back to his local community by ensuring others have continued access to the facilities and programs he benefited from in his youth.

Patrick holds a JD from Dalhousie University and a BA in Political Science from the University of Victoria, and now resides in Lower Lonsdale. During his time in university, Patrick volunteered with various student organizations, including representing students charged with academic offences before administrative tribunals, and serving as Associate Editor and Advertising Manager of the Dalhousie Journal of Legal Studies. Prior to becoming a lawyer, Patrick also worked in the Deep Cove community planning the Deep Cove Daze festival and the Cates Park Concert Series.

In his free time, Patrick enjoys cooking, both playing and watching sports, and stand-up comedy.
