

Liliana Vargas

Liliana is passionate about education, recreation and inclusive community building. She believes that every contribution and effort in these areas will result in a society that is resilient and capable of deciding its future. Liliana has volunteered with not-for-profit organizations in education, recreation and community service in Calgary and North Vancouver. Liliana is an engineer and project manager with experience in the private and public sectors in planning, design and oversight of projects to improve the mobility of people and goods while respecting the environment. Liliana enjoys energetic workouts, competitive tennis, recreational pickleball and long hikes. Liliana is married to another engineer and is a proud soccer and hockey Mom of two trilingual active teenagers.

